MEN HAVE BIGHTS.

Mr. WERR, of the New York Central the workingman has inslienable rights, so frequently and universally denied to him that they may seem to have been ob-necessity of his the ground for reducing to Lee. the workingman to an automaton which F. F. Let. Grand F. goes as it is wound up, and which is wound up solely according to the interest or caprice of the capital which gives him his employment, is wrong because it goes against the intrinsic exigencies of the workingman's being and condition.

The high-handed way in which Mr. Wran has dealt with the strikers seems to ignore that principle. He seems to think that workingmen must not organize, because unity is strength, and if Labor presents a solid front it may even worry and down Capital-potent, all-powerful Capital.

Mr. JAY GOULD has expressed his approval of the way in which the strikers have been met and treated. Naturally Other gentlemen occupying the position towards a bank account and Labor which Mr. Gould does will also indorse the conduct of the Central.

But over and above it all remains the fact that workingmen have rights and should be permitted the exercise of them.

This boarder that I mention,
A friend to lawles a un onatraint,
A loe to all convention.

And though I diligently try
To keep my home in t in,
I harber this wild narchist
And grow attached to him.
His incolorent creed by day
He blusters and he babbles;
By might he howls it in our ears,
Or garrulously gaubles. The right to private ownership

He strentonisly dentes:
He rends and tears my property
Bette my very eves.
And in his ferce and lawless moods.
He'll poind as and leay us:
Oh, he's cartisticm's champion—
A hierarch of chaos: There are no rights that he respects, No sancitity reveres; No sand the reveres,
Resards not customs, creeds nor texts,
Exterience, nor years.
No laws nor constitution bind.
This anarchest of ours.
Nor tones, her interpolation.
Nor popes, her principalities.
Nor popes, her potenties, nor powers.

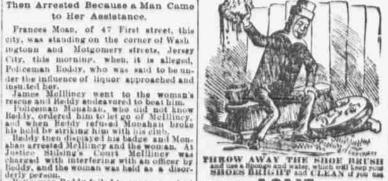

He is a horsiess radical, A sworn ironoclast—
No bian or purpose for to-day,
No reveience for the past,
You set me why I keer him, then;
Well, I can answer, maybe—
Because—because he calls me "Dad!"
And I—I call him "Haby"

GIVING THE OCEAN A SHOW. The Old Farmer Wouldn't Growl

There is hardly a day but some man omes down to take his first view of the ocean, and it is always interesting to watch him, says the Detroit Free Press. Most of them manage to conceal a great deal of their surprise on first beholding the bounding expanse of the white-created breakers, but your real old armer is no dissembler.
One came down the other day who was

Before Giving a Fatr Trial.

One came down the other day who was seventy-four years old, and who was accompanied by his wire, almost as old, and three sons. The five stood in a row on the hotel veranda and gazed at the rolling deep for fully five minutes before a word was spoken. Then the old man turned to his wife and said:

'Well, Sarah, what do you think of "I believe it's bigger'n our whole farm," she replied.

'Bigger! I guess it is! Han't she purty? I've allus heard and read of the ocean, and here it is at last. It's a sight worth seein' -eh, boys?"

'Yes, father, 'answered one, 'but I don't see a whale or a shark."

'No, nor I either, but don't be in a hurry, Henry, Give her time. She's a big body of water and has got to move slow. There's sharks and whales in there as sure as you are alive, but give 'em a show—let' em have a little rope. We've got four hours to stay, and we won't jump on her for a swindle until we've given her a fair trial."
